Nine Botanical Album Blocks

Pattern 1

The "Language of Flowers" and the art of botanical illustrations were two very prominent interests for the ladies of the Victorian Era. These women were well versed on the meaningful and highly symbolic arrangements of flowers and would translate those "secret" messages into their other pastimes. Whether it was in their painting, embroidery or arranging a bouquet for an applique quilt, by combining a certain collection of flowers together, a private message could be sent to the recipient of these elegant tokens.

The nine bouquets in the collection are displayed in an elegant oval frame, topped with a bow and swag. Furthermore, there is a scalloped setting frame that surrounds the outside of each and creates a distinctive look to the design. Two different settings for the completed quilt are discussed in the pattern and instructions for either choice is included in every pattern. (Finished block size 24".)
